BANKS WILL NOT FORCE POOL SALES

No pressure will be brought to bear by the lending banks to force the Wheat Pool to sell on the depressed market, according to a statement issued early Monday by E. E. Henderson, chairman of the committee of the lending banks. The statement follows: "Having in mind the present abnormal situation existing in the grain market and for the purpose of offering assurance, the seven banks financing the Canadian Co-operative Wheat Producers, Limited, wish to announce definitely that there will be no forced selling of futures by that company."

This week the Premiers of the three prairie provinces are in the East conferring with officials of the Dominion government and the banks of Canada with the idea of establishing a fixed price for Canadian Wheat in Canada. The Premiers are confident that they will come to some settlement of the question and the people of the West are anxiously waiting to hear of the outcome of their negotiations.

THE WORLD'S PAPER SUPPLY

The forests of Canada continue to be the chief source of the world's paper supply. During July Canadian paper was exported to 33 countries, ranging from Australia to Uruguay. Without the forests and paper mills of Canada the business of supplying the world's news to the public would be seriously restricted. Canada is becoming as famous for her paper as for her wheat.

Paper and wheat are more closely related than appears on the surface. Much of Canada's forested area is potentially good farming country, and as the forests are removed for the manufacture of paper the land goes under the plough and is devoted to agricultural production. Forests, in such cases are a source of income to the new settler, who receives cash for his pulp wood while clearing it off his land.

While Canada's principal export of paper is for printing purposes there is an interesting variety of other paper products. Wrapping paper, writing paper and wall paper are exported to many countries, and in June more than a million pounds of paper wall boards for building purposes were exported to the United Kingdom alone.

Prosperity has been reported to be just around the corner. Somehow it seems to be hard for wheat farmers to find the corner. When prosperity comes in sight in Alberta again she may be riding on the back of a pure bred dairy cow.—The Cream Producer.

CARBON TRADING COMPANY HOLDING MONEY RAISING SALE

The big posters are in the mail for The Carbon Trading Company's sale, which will start on Saturday, November 22nd, at 9 a.m. Mr. Guttman has placed everything on sale in order to raise enough money to pay his creditors and he has placed his limit in which to do this at 15 days. After that everything will go back to regular prices, so act accordingly. If you did not get one of the posters call at the Carbon Trading Company store and Mr. Guttman will be only too pleased to give you one.

"CROWS" FIRST PICTURE OPUS IS NEW TYPE OF FUN

At last it's here! What is? Moran and Mack, the two Black Crows. In "Why Bring That Up?" The Carbon Theatre has been waiting for this film for several weeks, but owing to demand in the larger centres they have had to wait till now. So, if you haven't seen this hilarious picture, now is your opportunity to do so.

Besides giving the audience a chance to find out just which was Moran and who was Mack, who by the way are called by their right names in the picture, they presented a delightful bit of entertainment.

Octavius Roy Cohen, the author of "Why Bring That Up," is said to have written the story loosely about the actual lives of Moran and Mack. Whether he did or not, the picture has a consistent plot, which is so often lacking in first vehicles of popular stage stars. Moran and Mack team up, start their famous "Two Black Crows" routine and start on the road to success, a girl Evelyn Brent, comes in and separates Moran from some of his earnings, and splits up, or rather she threatens to, this team who are so devoted to each other. But events transpire to the contrary.

Moran and Mack introduce parts of their former successes and add several new numbers—in same vein. The stage sequences are elaborately screened with much realism.

"Why Bring That Up?" should have a very satisfactory showing here on Friday and Saturday of this week. The fans will not only have their curiosity satisfied as to just what these record and radio artists look and act like, but will see a striking piece of entertainment.

DICK GRAINGER'S CAR STOLEN; FOUND

Radio is being kept busy and police are scouring the country, due to the fact that Mr. Dick Grainger, of Grainger Alberta, had the misfortune of having his Oakland car stolen from his garage on Wednesday evening of last week. It is thought that the culprits may be those who succeeded in breaking into the Garrett garage in town last Tuesday night, but who did not get away with anything as far as has been ascertained.

According to information received, Mr. Grainger had been to Calgary on Wednesday and arrived home about 1 p.m., placed his car in the garage and carefully closed the doors and went to his house for the night. Next morning early he went to the garage to drain the water from the radiator of the car, and on entering the garage, to his astonishment, the car was missing. Mr. Grainger immediately got in touch with the police, who are now combing the country to capture the culprits and restore the car to its owner.

As we go to press we have been informed that Mr. Grainger's car has been recovered near Saskatoon, where it was abandoned, but no trace of the thieves has been found.

Snicklefritz

After an all summer's rest, Snicklefritz has been induced to perform again.

Bim—"Do you think it right to buy an automobile on the instalment plan?"
Bam—"Sure, 16,000,000 people can't be wrong."

Summer Boarder— Why are those trees bending over so far?
Farmer— You would bend over, too, Miss, if you wuz as full o' green apples as those trees are.

The harassed-looking man was being shown over some works.
"That machine," said the guide, "will do the work of thirty men."
The man smiled glumly. "At last," he said "I've seen what my wife should have married."

An' do you think he looks loike his father?
"O! do that, but don't ye mind Mrs. Murphy, just so long as the child is healthy."

Proud parent (who served)—What I told you is the story of the Great War.
His Son—"But what did they need the rest of the army for?"

A man approached a minister and shaking his hand heartily, exclaimed: "How are ye, sir? You remember me I'm sure?"

"Well, I can't say as I do," said the minister doubtfully.

"Oh, but you must, ye married me ten years ago. Don't ye mind the man that forgot the time of the ceremony?"

"Ah," said the minister, "I remember you now. You got an awful fright that night."

"I did that, an' I've got her yet."

Professor (in Engineering Class)— "What's a dry dock?"
Student—"A physician who won't give out prescriptions."

HOCKEY CLUB MEETING FRIDAY NIGHT

A meeting of all those interested in Hockey in Carbon this year will be held in the Municipal Office on Friday night of this week at 7.30 p.m.

There seems to be plenty of enthusiasm in the game and it is expected that the club will be re-organized. As soon as this is done it is to be hoped that ice making will be commenced, so that the fans will be assured of a good hockey season. There is plenty of material for a pretty fair Intermediate hockey team in Carbon this season and the sport should have no lack of public support.

SIX YEAR OLD NOT SURE WHERE HE CAME FROM

Little Henry McKinstery, age 6, who arrived in Winnipeg recently, unaccompanied, on the "National" from Toronto is not quite sure where he came from. When questioned by passenger officials there, he first mentioned that he had come all the way from Scotland. When asked what boat he came over on he said that he had yet to try sailing and averred that he had come over on the Graf Zeppelin, a model of which he carried under his arm. The only thing that Canadian National officials were sure of was that Henry arrived in Winnipeg by train under the care of the Sleeping Car conductor and was on his way to Edmonton. Henry said that the weather was too cold for him to fly to Edmonton with his zeppelin model, and anyway, his aunt, whom he was on his way to visit, would be terribly disappointed if he was not on the train when it stopped there. Henry left Winnipeg and was met by his aunt on his arrival at Edmonton.

(Henry reminds us of one of our local boys who, under the same circumstances, would probably be on a visit to relatives in Montreal.)

NEW BUS SERVICE TO START MONDAY

W. Poxon and Son, operators of the Calgary-Carbon Bus Service, have purchased a De Luxe 7-passenger Buick Sedan and starting Monday, November 24th, will operate a bus service between Calgary and Drumheller. It is expected that the Bus Service will operate on time similar to the Carbon-Calgary service, i.e., leaving Drumheller in the morning at about 8 a.m. and returning will leave Calgary at 5 p.m. Mr. Poxon expects to make the trip in about 3 hours and this will give business visitors ample time to do their business in the city each day. The service will be daily and the bus fare from Drumheller to Calgary will be about $2.80, it is learned.

The Carbon-Calgary Bus Service has had the franchise for busses on the Drumheller-Calgary highway for some time and when this road is gravelled, which should be by next fall, this run should prove profitable to the operators.

SMALL NORTHERN TOWN BEATS WOMAN IN SHOE RECORD

Bonfield, just a speck on the map of Northern Ontario and a short distance from North Bay, is in line for two world records, a medical survey indicates.

There are only 150 families in Bonfield. Yet Bonfield boasts of 1500 children. One mother of 23 children, 22 living, is a grandmother at 46. Her youngest child was born a great uncle.

So far as is known, he is the first baby to realize that distinction at his birth. How many grandchildren the mother of 23 has will be known after the census is completed next June.

Wm. Van Loon is on jury duty at Drumheller this week.

We understand that Mr. and Mrs. J. Kyle and family will leave shortly to reside in England.

A New and Better Attitude

The world is passing through a period of depression from the evil effects of which practically no civilized nation is exempt, and the more highly developed and industrialized a nation has become, the more severely it is suffering from the prevailing depression. Undoubtedly, it is not wise to unduly dwell upon or stress existing hard times, and the tendency to do so should be resisted, but, on the other hand, it would be even more unwise to ignore facts, deliberately shut our eyes to them, and not make the required effort to overcome and shorten the present evil, seek for causes of it, and take necessary steps to prevent its recurrence.

There have been many such periods in the past, and there will, in all probability, be more of them in the future, despite all that man can do to prevent them. In fact, human failings and human greed are the underlying causes of these periods of depression, and their entire prevention will only be brought about by a complete reform of the human race. The present period differs, however, from former periods of depression in at least two important respects, both of which are the outcome of a changed attitude on the part of the vast majority of people towards our whole social and economic structure.

First, there is greater interest taken in relief measures than ever before by governments, corporations, and individuals alike. We no longer regard acute misery as necessary. We may not have learned yet how to prevent it, but there is a widespread and growing belief that the thing can be done and there is considerable willingness to make sacrifices to attain the desired end.

No longer is there callous indifference to the suffering caused by reason of unemployment. We have progressed to the point of realizing that the homeless casual laborer is not the only or even the principal sufferer in such times as these. We have learned to concentrate attention and relief upon the families of the unemployed who are permanent members of the community. We have come to realize that the difficulties of hundreds of thousands are not of their own making, and that they cannot be allowed to suffer want, and utter privation. We have learned, too, that it is better to provide emergency relief work for these people than to hand out doles and make them recipients of charity.

Thus in this present period of depression we find relief works being undertaken on a scale hitherto unknown. In Canada, it means that over $100,000,000 will be expended in order to provide temporary work for those lacking employment. This, of course, is not a cure; nor is it a preventive. It is merely an amelioration of existing conditions. It means, too, that as a people we are mortgaging our future, because these $100,000,000 or more will be borrowed moneys upon which we must pay interest for many years to come. But it is better to utilize these moneys in providing work than to dole it out in charity. Furthermore, if the works instituted are of the right character, in a word, if they are of a permanent character and productive of good to the country in the years to come, and the money thereon is not wastefully expended, they may even prove factors in creating and maintaining a new prosperity and staying off further periods of depression.

But an even more important aspect of this present period of depression is discovered in the efforts being put forth to find out what caused the depression, and how to climb out of it, and how to avoid again falling into a similar state. We now realize that a good deal of the economic thinking of recent years has not stood the test of the last twelve months. But, as the Chicago Tribune puts it, we have not lost one product of boom times; we still think that it is the business of an economic system to make for human enjoyment. Economics is not the dismal science to this generation. We know we have the productive capacity to provide a generous minimum standard of living to all who will work and we regard large scale unemployment and consequent suffering as a reflection upon our intelligence.

It is one thing, of course, to believe that a deep seated ill ought to be cured and quite another to cure it. And while there is no justification as yet for thinking that this is the last depression which we shall ever encounter, there is a considerable warrant for a tempered optimism. Some of the ablest minds in business and in the universities are directed toward the problem. We have more statistical information which bears on the causes of the business cycle than ever before. We are developing a technique for alleviating the worst effects of depressions, which will be of value even if a cure is not found. The outlook is far from hopeless.

Paine received a letter, postmarked Michigan City, Ind., containing $2 and the following note: "Seventeen years ago you trusted me with a pick and shovel. "Audible Museum" In Berlin

Phonograph Record Made In 1908 Is Among Collection

The piercing wail of a grief-stricken Korean, the merry song of a Roumanian tailor, the whoop of an American cowboy and the lingering call of a Spanish night watchman are some of the exotic sounds which the non-traveller will shortly be able to hear in an "audible museum" soon to be established in Berlin under the direction of the Ministry of Posts. A recently found primitive phonograph record of Count Zeppelin's voice in which the father of the airship appeals to the German people for support of his project will also be included. This record dates from 1908, shortly after a disaster to one of his airships at Echterdingen, and includes the words: "In a few years my airships will conquer the world." Acting on the belief that appropriate sounds intensify the impressions a visitor receives from displays, the Ministry intends to incorporate a series of phonograph records with various exhibits, which interested folk may turn on and hear the voices of such men as Edison, Marconi, Lindbergh, and of others of historical interest, as well as sounds from other lands and other times in so far as they are collectable and recordable.

Danger from Colds

Every woman beyond middle age should realize that a majority of the troubles she has to fear have their origin in what are known as common colds. Each attack lowers her vitality and reduces resistance to disease. At this season of the year every woman should see that her blood is toned up to meet the rigors of the climate and especially that strength should be restored after any cold, however slight. For this Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are a reliable tonic.

These Pills are not a mere stimulant giving temporary relief. They build up the body by creating that rich red blood which imparts the glow of health; steadies the nerves, improves the appetite and digestion and make the users capable of withstanding the rigors of our Fall and Winter months. They are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 50 cents a box from the Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

British Columbia apples now have a regular market at ports on the east coast of South America, according to F. C. Garde, manager of the Empire Shipping Company Limited. This development of the British Columbia market was brought about by experimental consignments made by this company last year; this year's shipments representing an increase of 400 per cent.

Canada imported 51,578 tons of Russian anthracite coal during September, it was reported by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics. The total imports of coal increased 12 per cent. over the last five-year average. Practically all the bituminous and over one-half of the anthracite came from United States.

English Rhetoric In Germany

Difficulty Sometimes Encountered In Country Advertisements

The one advertising slogan everyone over in Germany understands is: "Say it in English."

In rare cases where the English in those announcements is less clear than one finds in advertisements, the text usually gains in flavor what is lost in rhetoric. For example, a certain resort assures prospective visitors it has "a cure that cures rheumatism, gout, sciatica, neuralgia, golf, tennis and fishing."

She said she had had heart trouble for two years too, but after using Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills for a short time she had been relieved of her trouble, so I got two boxes and after taking them I was again feeling fine, and always recommend H. & N. Army Of Enumerators Will Be Employed In Taking The Decennial Census Of Canada

Fourteen thousand enumerators, 245 commissioners to direct their work, and a considerable number of others, will find employment next year in the taking of the decennial census of Canada.

The commissioners — one for each electoral district — will be appointed right after New Year, while the enumerators will be chosen in March or April, to permit of study and instruction prior to the actual date of the census, which will be on June 1st. The census taking, of course, will require considerable time, varying in accordance with the area covered and the density of population. But what is to be put down are all the facts and figures as they may be on June 1st, regardless of what changes may occur later, before the census is published. It is necessary to fix on some arbitrary date.

Awaiting the approval of the Government just now and to be promulgated as soon as this sanction is forthcoming are the regulations governing the census of Canada. There are several new features. Each successive census being more elaborate, past experience not only here but in other countries will be availed of. The Bureau of Statistics is constantly exchanging ideas with the international statistical organization. In the new schedules, complete as they have been heretofore, there will be further details of agriculture and industry, and the point over which some contention has arisen as to Canadian nationality will be covered. A person who says he is simply a Canadian will be put down as such, although it is denied that in the past it was impossible to make such distinctions.

The census must also take into account some seeming anomalies in the law.

For example, under the immigration act, even a Britisher must be in Canada for five years before he can acquire Canadian domicile, and yet if he has been here only six months he can vote or even be eligible for election to Parliament. The schedules will be so numerous as to set forth all the facts concerning the individual and his origin from away back.

One of the entirely new features this time will be the use of aeroplanes in the northern regions, which, 10 years ago, had to be covered on foot or by canoe or dog train. Incidentally, the tabulation was delayed until these returns came in. Next year, they will be as prompt as the rest.

While the census is taken completely only every 10 years, check on it is kept from year to year, and the figures are such as to indicate a normal growth but no extraordinary increase in population. Although quite an army of competent people will be required for the census business, the problem will be only one of selection, because there will be plenty seeking the jobs. The appointments are to be made by the Government and not under the Civil Service Act, and so political influence may count.

Predicts Speedier Planes

Rocket Craft Expert Believes 5,000 Miles Per Hour Possible

Herr Fritz Von Opel, German rocket craft expert, predicts the airplane of 12 years hence will be a rocket propelled conveyance that will fly 25 miles above the earth at a speed of 3,000 to 5,000 miles an hour.

"I think it sounds ridiculous to talk of travelling 5,000 or even 3,000 miles an hour," said Von Opel, "but in a few years that speed will be commonplace. Theoretically my experimental planes will do that now, but they have not been developed on a practical basis."

Canada's Fish Industry

Should Get More Support From Canadian Consumers

Business can be stimulated and more work can be found for our own people through the persistent purchase of Canadian instead of foreign goods. In no sphere of life can this policy be more easily followed or its good effects be more quickly seen than in the every-day use for the household, especially of food. It is strange that though Canada has the finest fisheries in the world, the consumption of fish at home is relatively small; and, at the same time, we seem to think it necessary to buy considerable quantities of foreign fish year after year, the imports in 1929 amounting to no less than $4,174,568.

If we reduced the imports of foreign fish and eat more of our own the fishing industry would benefit enormously, and no industry is more worthy of encouragement. Fishermen, both inland and on the two sea-coasts, are plain people who buy almost exclusively goods made in Canada. Is it not reasonable for consumers in Canada to reciprocate by making more use of Canadian fish, and thus to increase the purchasing power of Canadian fishermen? The industry has an importance which perhaps people who live inland do not appreciate, for the capital invested in it is nearly $60,000,000 and the annual production is worth more than $50,000,000. The money realized from the fisheries is spent with manufacturers of iron, brass, rubber, cordage, flour, textiles, engines, clothing—in fact, its ramifications are felt throughout the country, and directly or indirectly it gives employment to many thousands of workmen, hundreds of miles away from the scene of operations. If each family in the land consumed even a few more pounds of Canadian fish it would give a great stimulus to an industry which already contributes so largely to the prosperity of Canada.—Toronto Mail and Empire.

Figures For Past Ten Years Shows Heavy Business Done At Moose Jaw Stock Yards

"During the past ten years," says "The Optimizer," "some 792,994 cattle, 51,081 calves, 696,345 hogs, 258,944 sheep and 15,112 horses were handled through the stock yards at Moose Jaw, according to figures computed by the Southern Saskatchewan Co-Operative Stock Yards. In other words, more sheep and swine were handled through the Moose Jaw yards in the period under review than the entire number of sheep and swine present in Saskatchewan in 1929." In that year there were in Saskatchewan 1,166,913 cattle, 207,551 sheep, 599,909 swine and 1,122,757 horses.

Study Of The Whole Field Of Federal And Provincial Taxation Is Thought Necessary

The ever widening problem of raising revenue for administration purposes and public undertakings by both provincial and the federal governments, has reached a stage that calls for thorough examination of the whole field of taxation, according to views advanced at the convention in Toronto, of the Canadian tax conference and the Canadian civil service research conference.

With delegates in attendance from widely separated parts of the Dominion, the conference applied itself to the study of the country's tax structure and offered suggested remedies in meeting some of the more outstanding problems.

Duplication and lack of uniformity in taxes levied in the various provinces, should invite tax reformers into action, declared A. E. Chrysler, of Toronto Board of Trade. Lack of uniformity, he said, proved a baffling problem for business interests operating over a large section of the country, while overlapping arising in connection with the income tax was often considered "unfair."

In a paper submitted by Prof. H. R. Kemp, Department of Economics, University of Toronto, two primary problems were set forth: How to secure increase of revenue, needed to meet the commitments of the Dominion, and how to improve present arrangements for obtaining revenue.

The Federal Government, he said, faced a deficit of about $40,000,000 while the provinces and municipalities were also confronted with the need of augmented revenues to meet obligations and undertakings. As means of meeting these needs he suggested excise duties might be levied on certain low-priced commodities, citing sugar as an example. This suggestion, however, met with disfavor in the subsequent round-table discussion. Prof. Kemp believed there were other channels of revenue that might be explored, with the federal income tax possibly slightly raised.

As a remedy for some of the existing tax evils, Prof. Kemp advised a thorough investigation into the double taxation of corporation incomes, periodical conferences between provincial authorities, and a general study by everybody interested of the whole subject of public debts and taxation.

Alluding to taxation in relation to the country's net production, Mr. Chrysler declared that in 1928 the increase in taxation revenues had been more rapid than the increase in the total net production. In that development he detected a dangerous portent. "We may soon have the heaviest taxation of all imposed on the citizen in the leanest of all years," he said.

A paper by J. G. Hay, Commissioner of Taxation in Winnipeg, dealing with assessment of urban land for taxation purposes, provoked general discussion.

Mr. Chrysler, reviewing taxation changes in 1930, stated the present trend was to extend the gasoline tax and relieve income tax payers. It was recognized, he said, the income tax was unpopular because of its tendency to penalize the honest to the advantage of the dishonest. He forecast a "lively legislative interest" and a "progressive softening" of the income tax.

A one-cent-per-pound tax on sugar said Prof. Kemp, would raise at least $9,000,000 a year for the Dominion. "Sugar," he argued, "is now selling at a price no higher than that prevailing before the war, and at less than the cost of production. Such a tax, though retrogressive, would perhaps not be unduly burdensome to consumers who have paid over 25 cents a pound for sugar in the past."

Two prominent Toronto business men, William C. Coulter and George Bridgen, led the general attack on the proposed sugar tax. Mr. Bridgen asserted the governments of the world received an all time lesson against excise taxes on such necessities when Britain lost the American colonies through the tea tax.

It was also suggested by Prof. Kemp that collection of municipal income taxes be made by the federal authorities, who would then turn the amount over to the municipal authorities. This, he said, would increase the net revenue from the tax. "Various public utilities also could yield large revenue in case of necessity," he added.

Shows Great Variation

Every Country Has Its Own Manner Of Eating

Nothing is more curious than the different manners of eating which are correct in different countries. We leave succulent gravy on our plate, because good manners forbid that we should soak it up with a piece of bread. Yet in France to leave that gravy would be considered extremely rude, and the daintiest eater would certainly chase the last elusive drop round the plate with a soft piece of bread. The correct way to sup soup with us is from the side of the spoon, but to do this in Germany would mark one as not knowing the habits of polite society; there it must be imbibed from the end of the spoon. Another—to us—curious custom is the French one of resting the hands always on the table, directly they have finished a course; to sit with them in the lap is not good manners.

This reminds us of a story a woman told once of a foreigner her father asked to the house. At dinner the first night asparagus was served, and the visitor, having watched furtively what other people did, ate it in his fingers as to the manner born. The next night leeks appeared as a vegetable, and the young man, quite sure of himself this time, started on it happily, taking it in his fingers as he had done the asparagus. Now, did the laws of perfect breeding demand that all the people in the house should follow suit, or not? It is related of a perfect host that on one occasion when entertaining some visitor whose table manners were not very civilized, and who took up his finger bowl, and drank from it, he, after one glance round the somewhat astonished table, took up his finger bowl, and also drank from it!

How Women Lose Fat In England

How would you like to lose unhealthy fat that you don't need and don't want, and at the same time feel better than you have for years?

How would you like to lose your double chin and your too prominent abdomen, and at the same time make your skin so clean and clear that it will compel admiration?

How would you like to get your weight down to normal, and at the same time develop that urge for activity that makes work a pleasure and also gain in ambition and keenness of mind?

Get on the scales to-day and see how much you weigh—then get a bottle of Kruschen Salts. Take one-half teaspoonful every morning in a glass of hot water, and when you have finished the first bottle weigh yourself again.

Now you will know the pleasant way to lose unsightly fat, and you'll also know that the six vitalizing salts of Kruschen have presented you with glorious health.

That's the way Englishwomen keep slim—why not you?

YOUNG WIFE STRENGTHENED

After Taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Bancroft, Ontario—"When I first took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound I had been married about a year and my strength was leaving me on account of my condition. I was only 19 and it was my first child. My mother told me I needed something to steady my nerves and a girl chum told me to take the Vegetable Compound. I am so thankful I did because it strengthened my whole system and now I feel perfectly well and have a sweet little baby boy."

Peace River Bacon

Bacon Hogs Now Shipped In Carloads From Peace River To Vancouver

Less than 30 years ago, the Peace River District of Alberta, an extensive area of country northwest of Edmonton, was considered even by some agricultural experts as unsuited for productive farming. It is now one of the best wheat and other grain producing areas in Canada and also is growing in importance in mixed farming. Bacon hogs are now being shipped in carloads to Vancouver. Among the principal buyers of the Peace River hogs are the Vancouver Department Stores. Housewives of that city say that the bacon from Peace River is of the finest quality and like Oliver Twist they want more.

One of the most recent Canadian winners of the world's wheat prize at the International Grain and Hay Show, Chicago, was from the Peace River country, namely, Herman Trelle, of Wembley. Joseph H. B. Smith, of Wolf Creek, Alberta, last year's winner, is also an Alberta farmer, but is located outside of the Peace River District.

A Simple Treatment For Children's Colds

Cold in the head is very common at this time of year, especially in the very young. Neglect of a cold is prone to lead to serious consequences. To relieve all congestion of the system is the first step in treating a cold, whether in infants or adults. For the very young, Baby's Own Tablets are the ideal means of doing this. Containing no narcotic or other harmful drugs they soothe the child's fretfulness, relieve its suffering and ensure convalescence.

Baby's Own Tablets are without an equal for relieving indigestion, constipation and colic. They check diarrhoea; break up colds and simple fevers; promote health-giving sleep and make the dreaded teething period easy. They are sold by all medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Horses From Royal Ranch

Exhibits From Prince Of Wales Ranch Win At Portland, Ore.

Eight Clydesdale horses and one Percheron exhibited from the ranch of H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, at the recent Pacific International Livestock Show at Portland, Oregon, carried off eleven first prizes and one second. The entries also were awarded all the championships in the Clydesdale classes, the one second prize being awarded in the case where two horses from the Prince's string were shown in one class.

The entries from the Prince of Wales ranch, which is at Pekisko, Alberta, about sixty miles southwest of Calgary, were widely advertised prior to the opening of the show, and the horses were stabled in a special section decorated with the Prince's colours—scarlet and purple.

An Oil That Is Famous.—Though Canada was not the birthplace of Dr. Thomas' Electric Oil, it is the home of that famous compound. From here its good name was spread to Central and South America, the West Indies, Australia and New Zealand. That is far afield enough to attest its excellence, for in all these countries it is on sale and in demand.

Canadian Tobacco Production

Total 1930 Crop Given As 36,712,700 Pounds

Enough tobacco has been grown in Canada so that if distributed among the population would provide each man, woman and child with over 3½ pounds. The total crop for 1930 is given as 36,712,700 pounds or nearly 7,000,000 pounds more than in 1929. This year's crop was grown on 41,391 acres, 32,170 of which were in Ontario, 9,000 in Quebec and 221 in British Columbia. Ontario accounted for 28,078,000 pounds of the total production, Quebec, 8,490,000 pounds and British Columbia, 144,700 pounds.

For several years several million pounds of tobacco have been exported to the British Isles, and it is expected that this year a considerable percentage of the crop will be exported.

Some Mighty Midgets

Many Small Creatures Stronger In Comparison Than Large Ones

It has been proved that the common snail can draw a load which is fifty times heavier than itself. If an elephant were as strong, in proportion to size, it would have to move nearly 270 tons.

That is only one specimen from Nature's collection of "mighty midgets" that perform in secret on land and in the sea.

Even the strongest men find it difficult to lift more than their own weight. Yet, a bluebottle fly can lift more than 30 times its own weight, while it can draw a load that is 150 times heavier than itself.

Objects which are about forty times heavier than themselves are often carried by the mason wasps.

You have seen those ear-splitting powerful drills which are used to tear up the road? Well, there is a mollusc, known as the piddock or pholas dactylas, which can rival their power, and is a superior worker, as it makes no noise.

Silently, but none the less efficiently, the piddock bores through the hardest rock as casually as if it were soap.

Evidences Of Prosperity

Times Do Not Appear To Be So Bad In This Western City

Among a number of evidences of prosperity in Edmonton, cited by "The Journal," is the fact that the number of telephones in use has increased within a year from 16,124 to 16,641, or over 500. Another evidence is that "one wholesale house in this city sold $30,000 worth of radio sets in September"—thus showing a fair volume of luxury spending.

Origin Of Common Expression

The expression "to put a spoke in the wheel" would suggest adding strength to a wheel, although actually the saying is used to indicate that somebody's progress has been barred. It has its origin, no doubt, in the far-off days when vehicles had solid wooden wheels. Holes were made in some of these so that the driver who wished to put on the brake could do so by pushing through one of the holes a piece of wood, called a spoke, and thus prevent the wheel from revolving.

Holstein Herd Has Good Record

Three Holstein cows, members of a herd owned by James A. Thomson of Moose Jaw, have just finished yearly records in the R.O.P. with a production averaging 13,657 pounds of milk containing 657.50 pounds of butter.

DO YOU SUFFER FROM CONSTIPATION?

Countless remedies are advertised for constipation. Many relieve for the moment but they are habit forming and must be continued. Others contain calomel and dangerous mineral drugs, which remain in the system, settle in the joints and cause aches and pains. Some are harsh purgatives which cramp and gripe and leave a depressed after effect. Avoid lubricating oils which only grease the intestines and encourage nature's machinery to become lazy.

A purely vegetable laxative such as Carter's Little Liver Pills, gently touches the liver, bile starts to flow, the bowels move gently, the intestines are thoroughly cleansed and constipation poisons pass away. The stomach, liver and bowels are now active and the system enjoys a real tonic effect. All druggists 25c and 75c red pkgs.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

NOVEMBER 23

THE RICH YOUNG MAN—REFUSING A LIFE OF SACRIFICIAL SERVICE

Golden Text: "And He said unto all, 'If any man would come after me, let him deny himself, and take up his cross daily, and follow Me.'—Luke 9:23.

Lesson: Mark 10:17-27. Devotional Reading: Psalm 19:7-14.

Explanations and Comments

Refusing a Life Of Sacrificial Service, verses 17-22.—In Matthew the rich young man's question reads: "What good thing shall I do, that I may have eternal life?" and Jesus' reply is, "Why asketh thou Me concerning that which is good?" Mark and Luke give the question as, "Good Master what shall I do that I may inherit eternal life?" and the reply of Jesus is, "Why callest thou Me good? None is good save one, even God." Jesus' question as given here seems to indicate that the young man had used the word "good" (Good Master) with as little thought as we do when we say "Good Morning"; Jesus would have him weigh his words and see whether he meant what he had said. If he were calling Him good in the sense in which God is good, Jesus would accept his homage. Jesus always wanted those who came to Him to know what being His disciple meant, to weigh well the consequences of such a step before entering it.

What Following Christ Means.—If this young man had made the right choice, if he had gladly agreed to give his possessions to the poor and then to come and follow Jesus, do you not think that Jesus would then have said to him, "You may keep your wealth and use it rightly, for now you are no longer under its snare, you have ceased to put it first in your thoughts, you now have room in your heart for Me?"

The Choice the Rich Young Man Made.—It was a dramatic moment when the young man was face to face with a great choice. The warning which Jesus gave in regard to the difficulty of the spiritual life for the wealthy shows that the young man's decision when he turned away sorrowful, was to keep his wealth and not follow the Master. Wealth which another rightly might possess and rightly use, was for him a snare, for it kept him from following Christ. Not only did he have great possessions but the great possessions had him. He loved them too much. They deprived him of a vision of God and of the needs of others.

"His soul was like a boat tied fast, but tied with a long rope," said Phillips Brooks. "It was able to struggle up the channel, past headland and light and buoy that marked the way; but always something held it back from perfectly laying itself at rest beside the golden shore. 'What lack I yet?' And then said Jesus, 'Go and sell all that thou hast, and thou shalt have treasure in heaven; and come and follow me.' He did not say, 'It is wicked to be rich.' He only said, 'You will be free if you are poor, and then I can lead you to the Father, in whom you shall find yourself.' He went back, past the buoys and headlands, down the bay to where the rope was tied, and cut the boat loose from its anchorage."

Grassy Lake Coal

Coal Obtained By Methods New To Commercial Mining In Alberta

The recent shipment of a car of high grade lump coal, billed from Grassy Lake, Alberta, to Winnipeg, is of unusual interest. Apart from its marking the revival of coal shipments—for Grassy Lake was shipping coal to Saskatchewan in 1909—this shipment has a special interest in that the coal was obtained by methods new to commercial mining practice in Southern Alberta. Future shipments will be watched with considerable interest.

If baby has COLIC

A CRY in the night. Colic! No cause for alarm if Castoria is handy. This pure vegetable preparation brings quick comfort, and can never harm. It is the sensible thing when children are ailing. Whether it's the stomach, or the little bowels; colic or constipation; or diarrhea. When tiny tongues are coated, or the breath is bad. Whenever there's need of gentle regulation. Children love the taste of Castoria, and its mildness makes it safe for frequent use.

And a more liberal dose of Castoria is always better for growing children than strong medicine meant only for adult use.

ROYAL ADDRESS AT OPENING OF INDIAN PARLEY

London, England.—The future of India's millions was cast into the caldron of the momentous round table conference which the King, in a hopeful speech, opened in the great gallery of the House of Lords on November 12.

A scene splashed with Oriental splendor such as rarely has been viewed before in the western world was the setting for the ceremonial inauguration of the important negotiations, the gravity of which was stressed in the royal address and those which followed, by Premier MacDonald, the Indian princes and the delegates from India.

East met west round two large oval tables, one set within the great red and gold hall, scene of the opening of the five-power naval conference last winter.

A few minutes before noon the King entered the hushed hall. Centred in the colorful gathering was the golden throne chair from which he addressed the assembly. In conventional morning clothes, the King made an impression by the fervor of his address.

From his red spectacle case he took rimless glasses, looped them behind his ears, and slowly and carefully read his speech.

"No words of mine are needed to bring home to you the momentous character of the task to which you have set your hands," he said in an appeal for solution of the great problem of the future system of government for India. "Each one of you will, with me, be profoundly conscious how much depends to the whole of the British Commonwealth of the issue of your consultations. This community of interest leads me to come forth and it is a happy augury that there should be present today the representatives of my government in all the sister states of this commonwealth."

"I shall follow the course of your proceedings with the closest and most sympathetic interest, not indeed without anxiety, but with a great confidence. The material conditions which surround the lives of my subjects in India affect me greatly and will be ever present in my thoughts during your forthcoming deliberations."

"I have also in mind the just claims of majorities and minorities of men and women, of town dwellers and tillers of the soil, land owners and tenants, of the strong and the weak, of the rich and the poor, of the races, castes and creeds of which the body politic is composed."

"For these things I care deeply. I cannot doubt that the foundation of self-government is in the fusion of such divergent claims into mutual obligations and in their recognition and fulfillment. It is my hope that the future of the government of India, based on this foundation, will give expression to her honorable aspirations."

"May your discussion point the way to a sure achievement of this end, and may your names go down in history as men who served India well and whose endeavours advanced the happiness and prosperity of all of my beloved people. I pray that Providence may grant you in bounteous measure wisdom, patience and goodwill."

Four furniture movers took the throne away and replaced it with a chairman's seat while the Maharajah of Patiala, with his double pearl earrings bobbing against his black beard, proposed that Premier MacDonald take the chair. Aga Khan, head of the Indian Moslems and Great Britain's leading race horse owner, seconded the motion and Mr. MacDonald stepped forward. He spoke, not extemporaneously as usual, but with studied care, reading from a precisely worded address.

"We are met," he said, "to try to register by agreement a recognition of the fact that India has reached a distinctive point in her constitutional evolution. Whatever that agreement may be, some will say that it is not good enough or that it goes too far. Let them say so. We must boldly appeal to an intelligent and informed public opinion."

Air Lines Across Canada

Company Being Formed To Operate Coast To Coast Service

Toronto, Ont.—Formation of a transportation company, to be known as Canadian Airways Limited, is well under way.

The plan has been endorsed by the government, thus enabling the C.N.R. to participate with the C.P.R., Western Canada Airways Limited, and the Aviation Corporation of Canada, in the formation of a large company of air transportations.

Headquarters are being established in Montreal, with James A. Richardson as president and Sir Henry Thornton, head of the C.N.R., and E. W. Beatty, head of the C.P.R., as joint vice-presidents. There will be 13 directors, representative of leading financial and commercial interests in Canada.

Mr. Richardson, who is director of several aviation and financial organizations, and also sole owner of Western Canada Airways, will be the largest shareholder. Each of the railways will subscribe $250,000 of the capital involved, which amounts to a total of $200,000 shares of no par value. Their contribution at the present time is small.

The new organization will operate in two sections, known as Eastern Canada lines and Western Canada lines, each providing a highly organized passenger, mail and express transit service by air.

Within a very short time, it is understood, passengers, mails and express will be carried from coast to coast within Canada.

Penitentiary Crowded

Saskatchewan Institution At Prince Albert Crammed To The Doors

Prince Albert, Sask.—The Saskatchewan penitentiary here is crammed to the doors with 538 prisoners, the greatest number in the history of the institution, and those in charge are beginning to worry about berths for others if the turnover of the courts in Saskatchewan and Alberta continues to be as heavy. Temporary accommodation has been provided for 100 of the men, for whom there are no permanent cells. A new wing, designed to accommodate 200 men, is in the course of construction but will not be ready for at least two years, so little hope of relief is expected from this score.

Pensions Board

Western Pensions Tribunal To Hold Sittings In The West

Winnipeg, Man.—Members of the Western Pension Tribunal, appointed under the revised Pension Act to adjudicate on western applications for pensions, commenced their sitting in Winnipeg recently. Majority of cases to be dealt with are those previously turned down by the former pension board.

Dates of western sittings are: Regina, November 24-25; Calgary, December 1-5; Vancouver, December 8-20.

May Visit Ireland

Ottawa, Ont.—Word has been received by Sir George Perley, acting prime minister, that Premier R. B. There is as yet no definite word when Mr. Bennett will return to Ottawa, but he is expected about the end of this month or early in December.

Attempted Assassination

President Cosgrave Of Irish Free State Has Narrow Escape

Dublin, Ireland.—An apparent attempt against the life of William T. Cosgrave, president of the Irish Free State, was made on Monday night, November 10, it was learned here.

The would-be assassins, who had prepared an ambush on the highway leading to Cosgrave's home, opened fire on the motor car carrying the president, and an accompanying car. Bullets struck both machines but none of the occupants were injured.

President Cosgrave was returning to his home in the Fort Dublin mountains at the time of the shooting and was without his usual armed escort. Neither driver was armed and hence no immediate search was made for the gunmen, who fired from behind bushes. One bullet was said to have entered the car very close to where the president was sitting.

Government officials were reported "most disturbed" by the occurrence.

To Eliminate Radio Trouble

Street Cars In Moose Jaw Are Equipped With Condensers

Moose Jaw.—Street cars in Moose Jaw have been equipped with condensers with a view to eliminating much of the radio interference in the city, according to an announcement made recently by J. Leibrock, secretary of the Moose Jaw Radio Association. The condensers have been installed as a result of negotiations between radio dealers in the city and the street railway company. They are installed on the generators in the street cars.

Plan Was Rejected

London, England.—The British Government definitely rejected the Canadian offer of reciprocal Empire tariff preferences put forward by Premier R. B. Bennett at the opening of the Imperial Conference.

Predicts Another War

General Ludendorff Sees the Annihilation Of Germany In 1932

Berlin, Germany.—Another great European war in 1932, resulting in the annihilation of Germany, is predicted by General Erich Ludendorff in a pamphlet published recently.

In the 93-page pamphlet, the one-time World War military giant expresses the belief that the war, beginning May 1, 1932, will find Germany, Austria, Hungary, Great Britain and Soviet Russia opposed to France, Poland, Czechoslovakia, and Rumania.

He visualizes Germany as the battleground of the nations, with her cities razed by air attacks, her civilian population left to their fate and the nation's youth perishing in masses on the battlefronts.

Although he believes the war will last but a few weeks, he imagines Berlin held in a vise-like grip by the enemy forces, who mercilessly drive the fugitives back into the city's confines to die of starvation.

He sees German culture as receiving its death blow and the terrors of the 30-years' war surpassed.

Vorwaerts, in commenting on the pamphlet, recalls that Adolf Hitler, at the time of his abortive speech in November, 1923, selected Ludendorff as his minister of war, with the object of organizing a "war of revenge."

Will Carry Out Mandate

Premier Ramsay MacDonald Refers To Government's Position In Regard To Palestine

London, England.—Premier Ramsay MacDonald assured the House of Commons that parliament would have a full opportunity to discuss the White Paper on Palestine before any ordinances were framed on its basis.

In response to questions, he reiterated governmental assertions that the recent White Paper, regarding the British attitude towards Jews and Arabs in Palestine, had been misinterpreted and said the government intends to carry out its obligations under the mandate to both sections of the Palestine population.

Has First 'Plane Crash

Charlottetown, P.E.I.—Prince Edward Island's first aeroplane crash occurred at Lot 16 when a 'plane owned and piloted by H. S. Jones, of Apohaqui, New Brunswick, fell from a height of about 25 feet. The 'plane, with Charles Yeo, of Lot 16, as a passenger, and Jones at the controls, made a good take-off, but the engine stalled and went dead shortly after the machine left the ground.

Canadian Delegates Welcomed

The sum of $52,400 is provided for improvements to the Prince Albert National Park in Saskatchewan. In addition $36,841 is provided for road improvements and sewers in municipalities, distributed as follows: City of Swift Current, $29,341; village of Kincaid, $1,500; village of Shellbrook, $2,000; village of Shaunavon, $1,500; village of Shamrock, $500; village of Pennant, $1,000; village of Coderre, $1,000.

Works authorized in Manitoba total $235,000, and include the expenditure of $20,000 in improvements to the Riding Mountain National Park. The remainder consists of road improvements in municipalities as follows: Ritchie, $1,250; Tache, $1,250; North Kildonan, $66,000; St. Vital, $25,000; East Kildonan, $114,265; St. Paul, $1,250; Brooklands, $6,250.

The expenditure of money on these works has been approved by the Dominion Government and contributions to the undertakings will be made out of the $20,000,000 unemployment relief fund established by parliament at the recent special session.

The list of works for British Columbia is more extensive than the others because a considerable part of the expenditures in Manitoba and Saskatchewan was announced a week ago and the program of works proposed in the province of Alberta has not yet been completed.

In British Columbia there are still municipal public works amounting to $188,632 and provincial undertakings amounting to $4,000, particulars of which have not been received by the Dominion Government. The expenditures will cover a wide range of works, including road improvements, sewer construction, improvements to national parks, construction of parks, waterworks, airports, sidewalks, school grounds and bridges.

Predicts That Soviet Russia Will Turn To Capitalism Within a Year

New York.—Sir Percival Dewhurst Perry, chairman of the Ford Motor companies of Europe, predicted, on his arrival on the S.S. Bremen, that Russia will become a capitalistic state within a year.

"There is no question but that Soviet Russia will recognize capitalism within a year," Sir Percival said. "They have seen the writing on the wall, and with the anticipated collapse of their five-year plan, there is no doubt at all that they will revert to capitalism to avoid a revolution."

Accompanying Sir Percival were Maurice Dollfus and Dr. Karl Wilhelm Hauss. The group will confer with Henry Ford at Detroit.

Ottawa, Ont.—The government of Norway has formally recognized the Canadian title to the Arctic Islands commonly known as the Sverdrup Group, comprising Axel Heiberg, Ellef Ringnes, Amund Ringnes and King Christian. This friendly action on the part of the Norwegian government removes the one possible ground of dispute as to Canadian sovereignty in the whole Arctic section north of the Canadian mainland.

Announcement that Norway has given formal recognition to the Canadian title of these northern islands was made by Sir George Perley, acting prime minister.

"THE CREAM PRODUCER"

"The Cream Producer," a farm paper published in the interests of the Alberta Dairy Industry, has just come to the desk of the editor. This paper has been coming through the mail for some time, but it has been cast aside with numerous other periodicals that in some form or other find their way into the Editor's mail box.

On glancing through the columns of "The Cream Producer" we find that this little magazine is doing just what it proposes to do—to help the Alberta dairy industry, or, in other words, to bring prosperity to Alberta farmers through the Dairy Industry. From cover to cover this periodical deals with the prime factor in the dairy industry, the necessity of good breeding stock resultant in future good milk cows. Principally, this paper favors the Jersey cow as one of the best butter-fat producers and from experiments points out that it costs as much to feed and keep one Jersey cow as it does to maintain three ordinary cows, and the Jersey cow in question will produce practically the same amount of butter fat as will the other three cows altogether.

No doubt "The Cream Producer" is going into nearly every farm home in Alberta and we trust that our readers and every other Alberta farmer will consider carefully the articles published each month and act accordingly. We believe that "The Cream Producer" is doing much good for the Alberta Dairy Industry and wish it continued success in its undertaking.

NEWSPAPERS

(The Hanna Herald)

It is surprising that it is still possible to find the occasional individual who doubts the efficacy of newspaper advertising, despite the overwhelming proof adduced by the consistent advertising of nationally known products in all newspapers. It is yet more surprising still to find a misanthrope who disdains to read his own home town weekly. Yet a few such persons can be found in every community.

As a general rule, one can consider these persons are either eccentric geniuses entirely out of harmony with the human race, or else they hold to such a narrow viewpoint of selfishness that only the doings of themselves hold any interest in life for them. They are foredoomed to a life of acute unhappiness intensified by their habit of retrospection.

The home town weekly is a budget recording the hopes, aspirations and occurrences of the community. It stands for everything that is worth while from both the business and social angles of life. Its highest endeavor is to be of service to the community it represents. That service cannot be measured in dollars and cents. The influence a newspaper exerts in righting a wrong in obtaining justice where injustice is holding, in exposing fraud and trickery, in bringing the unpitiful glare of publicity to questionable enterprises of local, provincial or national origin in educating its field on matters of primary importance to the economic well being of the populace, is an influence that is promptly effectual and easily recognizable.

It is an axiom that no man can live unto himself. Each must contribute his share, however small, to the general betterment and well-being of his fellow men. The recluse has no place in a thriving business community. He is simply a barnacle clinging to the ship of progress. In course of time he will be brushed aside. No one will mourn his passing, but a better man will build in the niche he once occupied. The parable of the ten talents is just as applicable today as it was 2000 years ago. It needs the co-operative effort of every individual to bring progressive betterment to our lives and institutions. Non-co-operation may be the policy of somnolent Asiatics and Hindus, but it cannot be found in the vibrant virility of genuine Canadians.

DON'T BLAME THE TEACHER

Every parent is vitally interested and should sift out the causes of his child's lack of achievement at school. Ask yourself the following searching questions:

Is my child handicapped with poor health? If so I can and must remedy it by consulting an expert and introducing Junior Red Cross into the schools.

Is he lazy and indolent? If so I must teach him to discipline himself and enervate his habits of living.

Is he the victim of late hours, undue excitement of social events outside, loss of sleep and consequent nerve strain?

Is his system poisoned by bad tonics? If so, they must be removed.

Is he surrounded by the loving, happy home atmosphere that is alone conducive to peace and quiet? If not, why not?

Has my child a corner of the house where he may be undisturbed and keep his possessions to himself.

Do I insist on silence during the hours of evening home work, or is there a constant chatter everywhere?

Are the lights good, that his eyes may not suffer?

Am I foolish enough to criticize the teacher before the children?

Am I one of those who think my children are perfect and always in the right and do I blame the teacher?

"He wouldn't have complained in any case," Gay answered loyally. "That's Nick, Mr. Bartlett. He may not altogether like what life gives him, but he makes the best of it. By all the rules of the game he should be wading in the Pacific, or on the way there; but he has chosen to stick by me. I'm going in now to wash up. Train travel is an abomination. While I'm gone Nick can tell you our problems, and then I'll tell all the things he's forgotten!"

She arose, her hand tightening a bit on her husband's shoulder, and with a smile for the old man she went within. Nick sat quite still for a moment, looking down at the maples in the valley: a gorgeous panorama in gold and crimson.

"No," he said thoughtfully, harking back to the old man's question, "I've never set foot out of New England; yet I thought when Gay and I started off together—" He smiled, as if visioning something very far away. Then the smile vanished, and he said soberly: "Mr. Bartlett, the biggest thing in life has come to us."

He looked up, meeting the old man's untroubled gaze.

"I—ain't surprised," said Simeon Bartlett quietly. "Somehow I knew, soon as I asked what brought you home. Nothin' else would ha' held either of you back from conquerin' the world. You—you ain't by any chance lettin' yourself feel disappointed, boy?"

"I can't you know, for Gay's sake," Nick answered quickly, "though I'll admit that for just a minute I was—well—stunned. All in a breath the plans of my whole life had to be changed about—changed quickly, so Gay wouldn't know I minded ever so little. Perhaps you can't understand, sir, but ever since I was a little shaver I've dreamed of doing what we set out to do. More than anything in the world I desired my freedom. Freedom! What is freedom, Mr. Bartlett, when the look in a girl's eyes has a greater hold on one than the broad highway?"

The old man rocked gently for a moment.

"Freedom," he said at last, "is just another name for happiness. Some finds it some ways, Nick, and some another. They'll likely come times, boy, when the highway'll call so hard it'll be like drawin' teeth to keep from runnin'; but the freedom a man finds in his wife's eyes ain't a bad sort to hold onto. You just hold onto it!"

"So far," Nick answered, with a queer little gesture of surrender, "it has held onto me!"

CHAPTER V.

In any New England state one can find Bakersville: a good-sized inland town where neighboring farmers come to trade on Saturdays, when Main Street is lined with teams and trucks. Its common is bordered by ancient elm trees, amid whose boughs white churches lift their spires. There are rows of fine old pillared mansions—which seem to look down scornfully on the occasional dwelling of less stately architecture—quiet side streets, and winding byways.

The town lies in a valley, through which the river takes its course quietly and decorously, as a river should. In spring-time, when it floods the meadows, it stops considerably at the roadsides, making as little trouble as possible for passers-by. Hills surround Bakersville on every side, sheltering it from cold winds in winter, but turning it into an inferno during July and August, so that the place has not been overrun by "summer people." Sometimes an artist braves the heat in order to paint the loveliness of the surrounding country. Occasional boarders come to farms on the hillside outside the town; but as a rule the inhabitants of Bakersville have been born and bred there.

On a May morning, four years after that day when Simeon Bartlett gave his wise definition of the word "freedom," Nicholas Hastings stood in the doorway of the First National Bank of Bakersville, and drew a deep breath, preliminary to going in to the day's work. Spring was in the air and the tree-tops, painting the budding maples red—turning the orchards into bowers of beauty—tugging at Nick's heartstrings with the old, familiar urge.

Even Main Street, the least lovely part of Bakersville, looked alluring. Store doors stood open, welcoming the warm air that was to make short work of the accumulated stuffiness of winter months. At his fruit stand opposite, G. Leveroni was building a mound of oranges and pineapple, their golden beauty seeming a part of the bright sunshine; and at the post office across the way the R.F.D. man was starting out upon his rounds.

"Gosh! I envy him!" said Nick, and did not know that he spoke aloud till someone answered.

"I do myself, Nick. A great day to be out. I've half a mind to desert the ship and take a holiday."

Nick turned with a smile to the bank's president, who had spoken.

"A holiday! I've almost forgotten what the word means. Take one by all means, Mr. Maxwell. I guess we can worry along without you!"

John Maxwell laughed.

"I'd jump at that advice if my car wasn't in the paint shop. As it is—"

He stopped, suddenly aware that Nick's attention had wandered. A blue roadster was standing before the post office, from which stepped a slender woman in a crisp gown that matched the car. There was something lithe and graceful in her figure that caught John Maxwell's eye. Pausing on the top step, she turned, and perceiving Nick, waved a greeting to which he responded with a gay gesture and a quick lighting of his eyes, which, though lost on the lady across the street, was quite visible to the keen gaze of the bank president.

"Your new neighbor?" he queried, as she turned about.

Nick started, as if his thoughts were far away.

"Yes. Nice people—the Hallidays. She's an artist, you know. Her husband writes."

"Any children?"

"No. I believe they have some sort of notion that children would hamper their careers."

John Maxwell snorted with indignation.

"That's all I care to hear about 'em. How's Gay?"

Nick faced his questioner.

"Gay? What made you ask, sir?"

"Thought last time I saw her she looked seedy. Didn't like it, I'm very fond of Gay."

Nick smiled.

"I'm fond of her myself!" Then he said soberly: "The kids both indulged in whooping cough, you know, and Gay lost sleep. She's not been quite right since—tired, I guess. Well" (with a reluctant glance at the town clock), "I suppose I must retire to my cage."

"A cage—for Nick!" murmured John Maxwell as the boy left him. He stood for a moment watching the lady in the blue roadster ride away. He frowned. Then his thoughts flew to Gay, and his face softened. "She's in a cage, too," he thought wisely, "only she doesn't guess it, bless her loyal heart! Well, I trust their new neighbor will keep her hands off Nick—and her eyes, too! She hasn't any babies to lose sleep over. No wonder she looks fresh as a new-blown rose."

Then, as reluctantly as Nick, he, too, entered the portals of the First National Bank. But business was not pressing that morning, and his thoughts wandered. Why, he thought irritably, hadn't the janitor extinguished the furnace fire? The pipes of the radiator were still warm. He arose, opened another window, and in desperation threw wide the door to his private room. At eleven o'clock he decided he couldn't stand it. Passing Nick's cage he said: "I'm taking your advice—till after dinner. Thunder! this place is stifling! Why don't you open something more?"

Nick made a discouraged gesture toward a stenographer.

"She's got a cold. She always has a cold—can't stand a draught, so the rest of us suffer. A draught, on a day like this! If you'll kindly forget to close the door when you go out I'll award you a medal for saving one life at least."

"It would be the first I ever received," laughed John Maxwell as he obeyed.

He stepped outside, drawing in a deep breath of the welcome air. His own home lay to the north, but something drew him in the opposite direction—possibly the sight of a blue roadster turning a corner. He followed it, and came out on the house once occupied by Selma Smith. There he paused, surveying the old-time garden that had been restored. A rickety cow shed had vanished, and in its place stood a trim garage, connected with the house by a pergola, which would soon be a wealth of climbing roses.

It was a good old house, thought John Maxwell. He was glad the new people hadn't spoiled it with a tower, as the man who bought the Blodgett farm had done. Give it a year or two, and the garden would be a thing of beauty. And it was good to see a coat of new white paint, even though it made Nick's house next door look shabby. Yes, it did look shabby; there was no denying the fact; but painting cost in these days, and the boy's expenses had been heavy the last three years.

"Buy a ticket for your concert? But I don't know you." "Yes, you do, sir. I'm the man who turns your water off when you don't pay the rates."

Idea Proved Effective

Dresden Painter Tried New Way To Collect Money

A new and effective method by which an artist may exert gentle pressure upon an unwilling subject of a portrait has been successfully tried at Dresden. A young, unknown painter, having nearly finished a commissioned likeness of one of Dresden's leading industrialists, was told that the agreed upon sum of $500 would not be paid. The industrialist declared that the portrait bore not the slightest resemblance to him. The artist respectfully asked if he might have this statement in writing, as he had borrowed money on the expectation of being paid and wished to be able to show his creditor why he could not meet his obligation. To this the industrialist agreed.

Shortly thereafter at an exhibition a painting appeared entitled "Portrait of a Well-Known Swindler." Dresden, recognizing the likeness, laughed. The industrialist visited the exhibition, flew into a great rage and demanded the immediate removal of the picture. The artist, blandly produced the signed statement asserting that the portrait bore no resemblance whatever to the sitter. The upshot was that the industrialist decided to buy it for $1,000.—New York Times.

Paid Fine in Pennies

Vernon Deery had the court at Phoenixville, Pennsylvania, a bit peeved recently when he attempted to pay a fine of $13 for speeding with 1,300 pennies. When he deposited them before justice of the peace, that gentleman demanded that Deery count them. To make sure the count was correct, the justice counted them himself. The transaction took over an hour.

FEEL MEAN?

Don't be helpless when you suddenly get a headache. Reach in your pocket for immediate relief. If you haven't any Aspirin with you, get some at the first drugstore you come to. Take a tablet or two and be rid of the pain. Take promptly. Nothing is gained by waiting to see if the pain will leave of its own accord. It may grow worse! Why postpone relief? There are many times when Aspirin tablets will "save the day." They will always ease a throbbing head. Quiet a grumbling tooth. Relieve nagging pains of neuralgia or neuritis. Or check a sudden cold. Even rheumatism has lost its terrors for those who have learned to depend on these tablets.

Gargle with Aspirin tablets at the first suspicion of sore throat, and reduce the infection. Look for Aspirin on the box—and the word Genuine in red. Genuine Aspirin tablets do not depress the heart.

CARE OF MACHINERY

Thousands of dollars are wasted annually through leaving farm machinery and equipment out in the open, and breakdowns at critical periods always prove expensive. It costs very little, around $150, to provide an adequate, if rough, shelter for binders, seed drills, threshers, tractors, combines, mowers, etc., most of which are idle about 46 weeks in the year. All that is necessary is a shed that will keep rain, snow and sun from the equipment. The saving in depreciation alone will more than offset the cost in the first year. The farmer who has his machinery housed has a much better chance to repair it during the winter time and with only 370 working days between the spring thaw and freeze-up keeping farm machinery at maximum efficiency is really important.
